Introducing Gemma

It is a great pleasure to introduce our new Administration Manager, Gemma Everett. She can be reached on office@familyvoice.org.uk and 07749 604595.

Find further details of our Board and staff and how Family Voice works on our website at <https://www.familyvoice.org.uk/about-us/how-we-work/>

Do you live in Great Yarmouth or North Norfolk?

Family Voice Norfolk is always glad to find parent carer members who would like to become a little more involved.

In particular at the moment we would love to hear from members who live in Great Yarmouth or North Norfolk. We aim to have representatives and ambassadors in as many areas of the county as possible, as we know that the postcode lottery does exist and the experiences of families vary greatly depending on where they live.

If you would like to improve services for families like yours, and if you feel that families in your area have particular challenges – or advantages – please do get in touch with Kate at membership@familyvoice.org.uk. You can find out more about how we work on our website at www.familyvoice.org.uk.

We offer training and mentoring in whatever role you would like to investigate and we pay an hourly rate and travel expenses (where relevant – most of our meetings are still online), which you can read about at the bottom of our website home page. Or just ask us. We'll be happy to explain what it is like to do the work we do.

How to find out about Family Voice events and news

Our Facebook page not only has our own events and information but lots of other news about what is happening in Norfolk for children and young people with special educational needs and/or disabilities (SEND) and their parent carers. Also on Facebook, our Family Voice Members Chat Room is a closed group where you can give your views on whatever is concerning you and discuss issues with us and other parent carers.

Our website tells you more about how we work and our own events. You can find reports, news and our past newsletters there.

Our Membership Secretary Kate may email you about special events and surveys.

If you have been handed this newsletter by a friend or know someone else who is not yet a member, it is easy to join on our website at www.familyvoice.org.uk. Membership is free. Full membership is open to parents, carers and close family members of children and young people (0–25) with SEND. Associate membership is for others wishing to support our work, such as practitioners and extended family. Affiliate membership is for groups and organisations.

Newsletter deadlines

Our next newsletter will appear at the end of April 2022. Tell us about issues you'd like to see covered – or send us an article or your comments on any topic to do with SEND – by emailing comms@familyvoice.org.uk by 25 April 2022.

family voice question time

In March, while unable for a second year to hold our annual Conference, we held ten Question Time sessions so that parent carers could hear directly from professionals and ask their own questions.

A more detailed report will appear shortly on the Family Voice Norfolk website at www.familyvoice.org.uk.

We hope that both professionals and parent carers (and a few other professionals who are working with children) found the sessions helpful. In particular, we hope that as well as giving parent carers an opportunity to ask questions, we enabled professionals to appreciate how complicated it can be for families to navigate systems. In our work we find that the way information about support is communicated is often as important as the support itself.

As part of the sessions, professionals shared several links and email addresses that parent carers who were not present may also find helpful. These have been sent on to participants but will also appear in our report.

If there are topics that you would like to know more about, and where you think it would be helpful for us to organise a similar event where professionals and parent carers can talk to each other directly, please do let us know. We will certainly consider organising further events, such as our Let's talk... sessions, which took a back seat while Question Time was our focus.

Thank you for the opportunity to speak with the people behind my child's support.

Back in the room...

Now that a few more events are taking place face to face, rather than online, our Family Voice Ambassadors are beginning to attend gatherings in person. If you know of SEND coffee mornings or other events for families with children and young people with special educational needs and/or disabilities, and it would be helpful to have a Family Voice Ambassador come along to explain what we do and how we work to improve services, please contact Gemma at office@familyvoice.org.uk.

We have been working on...

March has been a busy month for Family Voice Norfolk. As well as our Question Time events (see page 3), we have been involved in a huge variety of pieces of work. Below are details of just a few of them.

SEND transport survey

Family Voice representatives worked with professionals from NCC to design a SEND Transport Survey. We wanted to be sure that the questions enabled families to give information about what really matters to them. We publicised the survey in March and have since heard that it was a great success – almost 100 of you responded and your information will help to shape future SEND transport strategy.

Special Educational Needs and Disabilities (SEND) travel and transport survey

Family Voice Norfolk and other parent groups have worked with Norfolk County Council to produce a very quick and easy survey. The aim is to get a better understanding of how children with SEND travel to and from school (or other places of education), what they enjoy and what they find difficult about their journey, and how well it works for parents and carers.

The survey is for parents and carers of children aged 0-25 with special educational needs and/or disabilities (SEND).

It will only take about five minutes.

The survey will be open until 25 March.

For the survey itself and more information about how it will be used, go to: <https://forms.office.com/r/Uk66UAg4Xa>

Dentistry

In February we asked you to update us about your experience of accessing dentistry for your child or young person with SEND. Your replies enabled us to submit a short report to the Health Overview Scrutiny Committee, which met on 10 March 2022. A copy of this report can be found on our website at <https://www.familyvoice.org.uk/articles-reports/survey-results-2/>. In addition, one of our representatives spoke on BBC Radio Norfolk to Chris Goreham, outlining, at a time when accessing dentistry is difficult for so many, the additional difficulties facing families with children and young people with SEND.

Ofsted revisit

Following the Ofsted/CQC Local Area SEND inspection in March 2020, Family Voice Norfolk has been involved in multiple workstreams resulting from the Written Statement of Action with which Norfolk responded to the finding of three significant areas of weakness by the inspectors. Ofsted/CQC inspectors will revisit this year to assess how far these areas have been addressed and the extent to which this has made a real difference to families. As most of these workstreams are completed, Family Voice Norfolk has three main focuses:

- to make sure that improvements continue to be made in all these areas, whatever the outcome of the Ofsted/CQC revisit, and that parent carers' voices form a key part of decision-making
- to make sure that the views of families are clearly expressed to the inspectors when they revisit and that we at Family Voice Norfolk have a clear understanding of how families have been impacted by the work done in the past two years and where further work is urgently needed
- to make sure that appropriate participation by parent carers is always considered in any relevant new or continuing work with the local authority and health services. We prefer to work in co-production, but in any case to be involved at as early a stage as possible in developments, so that time and resources are not wasted by creating systems or communications that are not helpful to families.

Mental health and wellbeing support

The pandemic has brought an increased awareness that our mental health is as important as our physical health. On the next few pages you will find a range of resources to help both adults and young people with their mental wellbeing. Family Voice has spoken up frequently about the need for services for adults that parent carers can access easily, so we are particularly pleased to be able to report on the introduction of Qwell below.

You can also visit the Just One Norfolk website for information and links to support. Go to <https://www.justonenorfolk.nhs.uk/emotional-health/children-young-peoples-emotional-health>.

Get urgent help if you are experiencing a mental health crisis

Mental health crisis means different things to different people.

You may be distressed and want to harm yourself, or someone else.

You may be hearing unpleasant voices, feel that people are watching you or that you are in immediate danger.

It could help to tell someone you trust, such as a family member or a friend who can then help you decide what to do. They can also contact services on your behalf.

If you are supported by one of NSFT's services:

- Check your care plan, and:
- During office hours contact your care coordinator or the duty number for the team that is supporting you. If you don't have their details, visit NSFT's service finder.
- Or call the urgent mental health helpline on 111 and select option 2.

If you need urgent help and you are not supported by NSFT's services:

- Call 111 and select option 2 to speak to the 24-hour urgent mental health helpline.

Please avoid visiting hospital A&E (Accident and Emergency) departments unless you have a life-threatening emergency. The number above can connect you to crisis services.

If you are with someone who has attempted suicide, call 999 and stay with them until the ambulance arrives. If anyone is at serious risk of harm, call 999 and ask for the police.

St Giles

SOS+ Programme

St Giles aims to break the cycle of prison, crime and disadvantage to create safer communities by supporting people to change their lives.

We use expertise and lived experiences to empower people who are not getting the help they need, who are hard to engage because they have been repeatedly failed – held back by poverty, exploited, abused, dealing with mental health problems, caught up in crime or a combination of these issues.

We train 'Peer Advisors' to become qualified in Level 3 Information, Advice and Guidance.

They use this qualification and their lived experience to inspire and support people facing similar situations. Being helped by someone who has 'been there' is powerful and underpins all our projects.

SOS+ SERVICE

St Giles' SOS+ Service delivers early intervention work in educational and community settings, through preventative sessions on violence, vulnerability and exploitation. Our award-winning approach uses trained professionals with lived experience of the criminal justice system to de-glamorise gang involvement and expose the harsh realities of crime and violence.

SOS+ delivers educational sessions that tackle the issues of county lines drug smuggling, gangs, and knife crime to young people who are vulnerable and at risk of exploitation, alongside providing training and awareness sessions on these topics to parents, teachers and other professionals.

SOS+ PROJECT AIMS

- Prevent young people becoming involved in serious youth violence and criminal activity by demystifying gang culture and educating them about the harsh realities of knife crime and prison life;

- Impart real tools that young people can utilise to make better informed decisions and to avoid negative lifestyle choices;
- Endorse the benefits of education;
- Equip parents and professionals with the knowledge, understanding and tools to help safeguard their young people.

OUR WORK HAS THREE THEMES:

Building safety: most clients cannot focus on longer-term aspirations until they feel safe and secure. Our staff support clients to immediately address these needs.

Building aspirations: We support clients to build up the skills, confidence and resilience needed to create and to re-engage with education, training and employment.

Building connections: All our clients experience social isolation. We support them to develop the tools to become create positive relationships within their community.

Junior Canaries takeover day

At Norwich City's Premier League fixture against Burnley on 10 April at Carrow Road, Norfolk Autism Partnership will have a stand and a Family Voice Norfolk representative will also be there with information about our organisation. The day has been chosen as a Junior Canaries takeover day.

As part of the takeover day, the following activities are taking place:

Virtual mascots

As it is not possible to offer NCFC's regular matchday experience, virtual mascots are being run exclusively for this fixture.

There will be the starting line-up graphic on the big screen featuring images of the players drawn by Junior Canaries.

One of the junior members will announce the starting line-up pitchside at Carrow Road before the game.

Community Hero

The Fosters Community Hero has been selected as a junior from nominations on the Canaries' website.

Birthday blast

Pymm & Co have given away five birthday blasts to five different juniors, which includes tickets to the game, a shirt and a cake.

Juniors have sent in good luck questions to the players and their questions to Dean Smith prior to his press conference on Friday.

Programme designer

The matchday programme cover has been designed by a junior member – you can get your copy from the club shop or from programme sellers around the ground.

Warm-up shirts

The players' warm-up t-shirts will feature a design created by a junior member.

Matchday DJ

Junior Canaries have sent in their pre-match songs, which will be played around the ground in the build-up to the game.

Matchday FanZone

The FanZone will also be open to all juniors with a gift available for those who turn up first (at Carrow Park, 11:30–1:30).

For more information on how to become a Junior Canary member, visit the Canaries' website here.

Protection of liberty consultation

The government is consulting on the proposed changes to the Mental Capacity Act 2005 (MCA) Code of Practice, which includes guidance on the new Liberty Protection Safeguards (LPS) system. This consultation is also seeking views on the LPS regulations, which will underpin the new system.

This is a joint consultation published by the Department of Health and Social Care (DHSC) and the Ministry of Justice (MoJ).

The LPS will apply to people over the age of 16, and the Department for Education (DfE) has been involved in the development of this new system.

The LPS is important guidance about what has to happen if a person is deprived of their liberty without their consent.

You can find more details and Easy Read versions of documents that explain more about what is proposed on the government website here.

Report on bias and discrimination faced by disabled children and their families from ethnic and marginalised communities

Special Needs Jungle researched this topic and fed their results in to the SEND Review. You can read their findings here. Please do also let Family Voice know if you have experienced this.

What are Integrated Care Systems (ICSs)?

Integrated care is about giving people the support they need, joined up across local councils, the NHS, and other partners. It removes traditional divisions between hospitals and family doctors, between physical and mental health, and between NHS and council services.

In the past, these divisions have meant that too many people experienced disjointed care. Integrated care systems (ICSs) are new partnerships between the organisations that meet health and care needs across an area, to coordinate services and to plan in a way that improves population health and reduces inequalities between different groups.

Since 2018, they have been deepening the relationship in many areas between the NHS, local councils and other important strategic partners such as the voluntary, community and social enterprise sector. They have developed better and more convenient services, invested in keeping people healthy and out of hospital and set shared priorities for the future.

The NHS Long Term Plan (<https://www.longtermplan.nhs.uk>) confirmed that all parts of England would be served by an integrated care system from April 2021.

Integrated care systems exist to achieve four main aims:

- improve population health and healthcare
- tackle unequal access, experience and outcomes
- enhance productivity and value for money
- support broader social and economic development

Some acronyms that you may see and hear are:

ICB – Integrated Care Board and

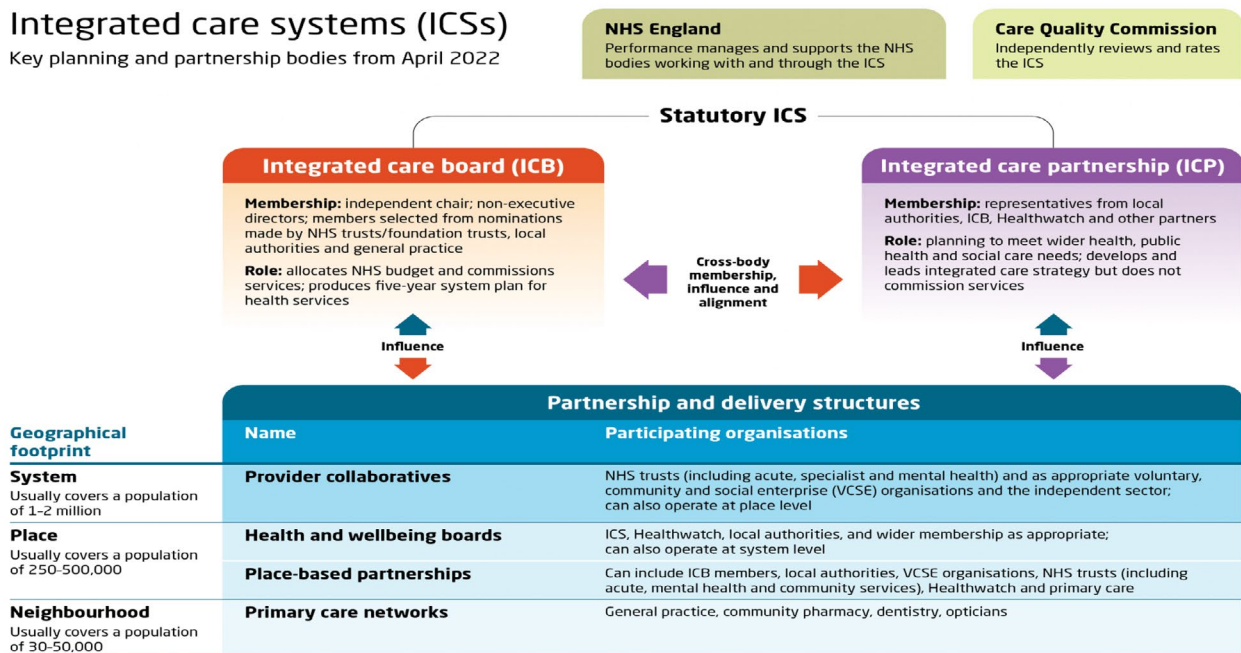

ICP – Integrated Care Partnership

The acronyms sound simple but the organisation is complicated, as you will see from the chart below.

Key planning and partnership bodies from April 2022

The Health and Care bill is going through its final stages at the moment. Key features of the bill in relation to children and young people with special educational needs and/or disabilities (SEND) are:

- ICBs must consider the needs of children, including those with SEND, in their forward planning
- ICBs and ICPs must make sure they have a diverse skill mix on their Boards
- The Department for Health and Social Care (DHSC) and the Department for Education (DfE) will work with partners to consider how information sharing can be improved across children's health, social care and wider partners

- ICB annual reports must include how they have met their statutory duties for safeguarding babies, children and young people (BCYP)
- Guidance will be provided to ICSs on SEND, Safeguarding and BCYP provision
- The identification of an executive lead for SEND and BCYP accountable to the ICB.

Energy support

The following sources of support in this time of rising energy costs may be helpful.

Disability Energy Support (Scope) offers free energy and water advice to disabled people, helping them to manage their energy and water needs.

The service is open to:

- any disabled person or households where one or more disabled people live, and those households are in England or Wales

High demand for telephone appointments is expected. You can still get telephone appointments and new appointments are being released each week.

You can also get advice by email at Disability.EnergySupport@Scope.org.uk.

Expert advisers can help and talk you through a wide range of topics related to your energy and water needs, including:

- managing energy and water debt
- changing your meter
- energy and water efficiency
- accessing benefits, grants and trusts
- free fuel vouchers (conditions apply)
- contacting or complaining to your supplier
- understanding your gas and electricity bills
- understanding how to use your heating systems
- support registering with the Priority Services Register

A telephone appointment with an energy adviser will last up to 45 minutes. During this appointment you will get information and advice specific to your needs. Your adviser will arrange any follow up appointments, if needed.

To get the most out of your appointment, please try to give your adviser as much detail as possible. You should have pen and paper for taking notes and the following information easily available:

- your most recent gas or electricity bill
- an up-to-date meter reading, if possible
- details of any missed payments or arrears
- details of any payment plans agreed with your energy supplier

You will also get support through a personalised action plan, setting out steps for you to take to resolve the problem. This may include contacting other services for additional advice and support.

of Norfolk by a government department in the past three months, or plan to move to Norfolk in the next 28 days, be in financial hardship or receive a means-tested benefit.

Financial help

NAS can offer financial assistance with living costs if you are eligible. It may be able to:

- Pay for petrol or your transport costs to enable you to get to work
- Give you a food voucher to spend at a supermarket
- Give you a voucher to buy school clothes from a uniform supplier
- Make a gas or electricity meter pre-payment via Paypoint if you have run out

Household items

If you need essential kitchen appliances and furniture, NAS might be able to help you. It can provide high-quality second-hand and new items. All items come with warranties.

Support and guidance

People struggle financially for many reasons. The NAS team wants to help you to manage better and for things to improve. It aims to help you to live independently wherever possible and get out of financial hardship.

NAS can put you in touch with organisations that can offer support in many different ways. You can also find support organisations on the Norfolk Community Directory (<https://communitydirectory.norfolk.gov.uk>).

Support organisations could help you:

Your comments will be used to help Norfolk County Council support your childcare requirements and inform its plans moving forward. The survey should take around five minutes to complete. You do not have to give your name or contact details.

If you have any queries about the surveys, please email fis@norfolk.gov.uk.

SEND Review:

Right support
Right place
Right time

The SEND Review green paper

After long delays, the much-awaited SEND Review was finally published on 29 March. The National Network of Parent Carer Forums (NNPCF), of which Family Voice Norfolk is a member, has been involved in submitting views to the review team since it was launched in the summer of 2019. More recently, in autumn 2021, the SEND review was re-set following the pandemic and NNPCF co-chairs Tina Emery and Mrunal Sisodia were invited to join the reconstituted steering group. After careful deliberation, the NNPCF board decided that Tina and Mrunal should join the Review Steering Group once they had been satisfied that it was an opportunity to co-produce solutions and not just rubber stamp proposals. This group first met in late 2021.

You can find out the NNPCF's view of the final Review on their website at <https://nnpcf.org.uk/2022/03/29/send-green-paper-response-from-the-nnpf/> and our summary of what they have to say on page 40.

Below is the government's summary of the Review. You can read the complete Review at <https://www.gov.uk/government/consultations/send-review-right-support-right-place-right-time>.

There is now a 13-week consultation period in which you can give your views about the content of the Review. You will find details of some ways to do this on page 41, but you can also email your views to membership@familyvoice.org.uk and we will collate them with our own response to the green paper.

Summary of the SEND Review green paper: right support, right place, right time

The government is determined to level up opportunities for all children and young people – without exception. We are just as ambitious for children and young people with special educational needs and disabilities (SEND) as for every other child.

The SEND review sets out government's proposals for a system that offers children and young people the opportunity to thrive, with access to the right support, in the right place, and at the right time, so they can fulfil their potential and lead happy, healthy and productive adult lives.

The reforms to the SEND system introduced in 2014 had the right aspirations and since then there has been much to celebrate. It is clear that the system is driven by a hardworking and dedicated workforce. However, despite examples of good practice, too often the experiences and outcomes of children and young people are poor. Parents and carers are frustrated at having to navigate an increasingly complex and adversarial system. Growing tension across the system is causing delays in accessing support and increasing financial challenges for local government.

The SEND review is a response to the widespread recognition that the system is failing to deliver for children, young people and their families.

Over the course of the review, we have listened to a wide range of people, most importantly children, young people and their families. As the review progressed it became clear that alternative provision is increasingly being used to supplement the SEND system. Therefore, we have looked at the specific challenges facing the alternative provision sector, and proposed potential solutions, as part of this review.

The review has identified 3 key challenges facing the SEND and alternative provision system.

Navigating the SEND system and alternative provision is not a positive experience for too many children, young people and their families.

Outcomes for children and young people with SEND or in alternative provision are consistently worse than their peers across every measure.

Despite the continuing and unprecedented investment, the system is not financially sustainable.

A vicious cycle of late intervention, low confidence and inefficient resource allocation

For both families and providers, the review has identified there is significant inconsistency in how needs are met. Decisions are too often made based on where a child or young person lives or is educated, not on their needs.

This cycle starts in early years and mainstream schools, where despite best endeavours, settings are often ill-equipped to identify and support children and young people. Inconsistent practice makes this worse.

It is not clear to families what they should reasonably expect from their local mainstream settings, and they lose confidence that these settings can meet their child's needs. As a result, education, health and care plans (EHCPs) and, in some cases, specialist provision, are seen as the only means of guaranteeing the right and appropriate support.

Increasing numbers of requests for EHCPs and specialist provision means that children and young people face significant delays in accessing support.

Some children and young people, including those with more complex needs, face long journeys to get to school or have to attend a placement outside of their local area, taking them away from their local community.

Financial resource and workforce capacity is pulled to the specialist end of the system so there is less available to deliver early intervention and effective, timely support in mainstream settings. As a result, the vicious cycle continues with outcomes and experiences for children and young people continuing to suffer and costs increasing.

Turning this vicious cycle into a virtuous one

The vast majority of children and young people should be able to access the support they need to thrive in their local mainstream setting, without bureaucratic processes, or the need for an EHCP or a placement in special or alternative provision. They should have their needs identified promptly, with appropriate support put in place at the earliest opportunity.

For some children and young people, specialist provision will be the most appropriate placement for them to be able to learn and succeed. They should be able to access this with minimal bureaucracy.

The green paper is consulting on ambitious proposals to deliver greater national consistency in the support that should be made available, how it should be accessed and how it should be funded. It sets out plans for an inclusive system, starting with improved mainstream provision that offers early and accurate identification of needs, high-quality teaching, and prompt access to targeted support.

An inclusive system will also ensure that children and young people have timely access to specialist services and support, including specialist placements where this is appropriate. This will be underpinned by strong co-production with families and accountability at every level, and improved data collection to give a timely picture of how the system is performing.

A single national SEND and alternative provision system

The review concludes that there is a need for much greater consistency in how needs are identified and supported, so decisions are made based on a child or young person's needs in co-production with families, not where they live or the setting they attend.

We propose to:

- establish a new national SEND and alternative provision system setting nationally consistent standards for how needs are identified and met at every stage of a child's journey across education, health and care - parents and carers will be confident that their child's needs will be met effectively in the most appropriate local setting, they will be clear about what support their child is receiving and will be engaged in decision-making at every stage
- create new local SEND partnerships bringing together education, health and care partners with local government to produce a local inclusion plan setting out how each area will meet the national standards - when specialist support is needed, the local inclusion plan will set out the provision that is available within the local area, including units within mainstream, alternative and specialist provision
- support parents and carers to express an informed preference for a suitable placement by providing a tailored list of settings, including mainstream, specialist and independent - they will continue to have the right to request a mainstream setting for their child
- introduce a standardised and digitised EHCP process and template to minimise bureaucracy and deliver consistency
- streamline the redress process to make it easier to resolve disputes earlier, including through mandatory mediation, whilst retaining the tribunal for the most challenging cases

Excellent provision from early years to adulthood

The review has heard that we need a more inclusive education system to ensure that children and young people with SEND are set up to thrive.

We will:

- increase the total investment in the schools' budget, with an additional £1 billion in 2022 to 2023 to support children and young people with the most complex needs
- improve mainstream provision, building on the ambitious schools white paper reforms, through excellent teacher training and development and a 'what works' evidence programme to identify and share best practice including in early intervention
- build expertise and leadership, by consulting on a new SENCo national professional qualification (NPQ) for school SENCos, alongside increasing the number of staff with an accredited SENCo qualification in early years settings
- invest £2.6 billion, over the next 3 years, to deliver new places and improve existing provision for children and young people with SEND or who require alternative provision
- deliver more new special and alternative provision free schools in addition to 60 already in the pipeline
- set out a clear timeline that, by 2030, all children and young people will benefit from being taught in a family of schools, with their school, including special and alternative provision in a strong trust or with plans to join or form one, sharing expertise and resource to improve outcomes
- commission analysis to better understand the support that children and young people with SEND need from the health workforce so that there is a clear focus on SEND in health workforce planning
- fund more than 10,000 additional respite placements and invest £82 million in a network of family hubs so more children, young people and their families can access wraparound support
- invest £18 million, over the next 3 years to build capacity in the supported internships programme
- improve transition at further education by introducing common transfer files alongside piloting the roll out of adjustment passports to ensure young people with SEND are prepared for employment and higher education

A reformed and integrated role for alternative provision

At their best, alternative provision schools are experts in supporting children and young people whose behaviour or other needs can present a barrier to learning. But, too often the role of alternative provision is unclear, and it is used too late or in a way that is not best focused on children's needs.

To address these barriers, we propose to:

- make alternative provision an integral part of local SEND systems by requiring the new SEND partnerships to plan and deliver an alternative provision service focused on early intervention
- give alternative provision schools the funding stability to deliver a service focused on early intervention by requiring local authorities to create and distribute an alternative provision specific budget

- develop a bespoke performance framework for alternative provision which sets robust standards focused on progress, re-integration into mainstream education or sustainable post-16 destinations
- deliver greater oversight and transparency on children and young people's movements into and out of alternative provision
- launch a call for evidence, before the summer, on the use of unregistered provision to investigate existing practice

System roles, accountabilities and funding reform

The review has heard the need to align system incentives and accountabilities to reduce perverse behaviours that drive poor outcomes and high costs in the current system.

We propose to:

- deliver clarity on roles and responsibilities for all partners, across education, health, care and local government through the new national standards - with aligned accountabilities, so everyone has the right incentives and levers to do their role and be held to account
- equip the Department for Education's new regions group to take responsibility for holding local authorities and trusts to account for delivering for children and young people with SEND locally through new funding agreements between local government and the Department for Education
- introduce a new inclusion dashboard for 0 to 25 provision giving a timely, transparent picture of how the system is performing at a local and national level across education, health and care
- work with Ofsted and the Care Quality Commission to deliver an updated local area SEND inspection framework with a focus on arrangements and experiences of children and young people with SEND and in alternative provision
- deliver funding reform through the introduction of a new national framework of banding and price tariffs for funding, matched to levels of need and types of education provision set out in the new national standards - providers will have clarity on how much funding they should expect to receive for delivering support or a service, whilst ensuring the right pricing structures are in place, helping to control high costs attributed to expensive provision

Delivering change for children and families

The publication of the green paper marks the start of a 13-week consultation process, closing on 1 July 2022. We encourage everyone to reflect on the proposals in the green paper and respond to our consultation. Alongside the written consultation will be a series of events to gather additional views and contribute to the overall consultation.

We know that there are immediate changes that can be made now to help stabilise the current system. We are taking immediate steps to stabilise local SEND systems through the safety value and delivering better value programmes. The proposals set out in the green paper will align with wider reforms around levelling up, including policy set out in the recent schools white paper, as well as the forthcoming independent review of children's social care and wider reforms to the delivery landscape across health and care.

Later this year, following the completion of the consultation, we will publish a national SEND delivery plan, setting out the government's response to the consultation and how the proposals will be implemented. Together, we can ensure every child and young person with SEND and those in alternative provision can thrive and be well prepared for adult life.

What the National Network of Parent Carer Forums (NNPCF) has to say about the SEND Review green paper

The NNPCF agrees with the government's analysis of what is wrong with the SEND system as it stands – indeed, the NNPCF made sure that the government understood what parent carers say about it. Family Voice Norfolk regularly feeds back the views and experiences you share with us (anonymously, of course) both to our Norfolk local authority, health and voluntary systems and via NNPCF to the national debate.

The green paper contains a lot of what NNPCF asked for. Specifically:

- a set of minimum standards
a single national SEND system with national standards and a review of the SEND Code of Practice. There will be a standardised and digitised EHCP process and templates. NNPCF would also like the reasonable adjustments that children and young people can expect to be specified.
- clarity on joint commissioning and who pays for what local SEND partnerships across education, health and care that must produce a local inclusion plan. Who pays for what will be based upon an analysis of local needs that is co-produced with families.
- a greater focus on workforce development in schools
the introduction of a new NECO NPQ in schools and an increase in the number of SEND qualified staff in schools. NNPCF would like this to include health and social care practitioners ingrain the values of co-production.
- a greater focus on implementation with a new national SEND Delivery Board to oversee this process.
- additional money going into the system
more money to be spent on education generally and SEND in particular.

However, there are many questions that still need to be answered.

- how will responsibilities, powers, accountability and regulation work in the new system?
There is a danger that in a confused system, the needs of children and families are lost.
- how will the new national system of banding and price tariffs work?
It's important that the bandings and tariffs set are sufficient to meet needs and don't discourage education, health and care providers from supplying the services that families need.

- how will the new redress process work?
too many families have to go to tribunal to get what they are entitled to. Without further clarity on how mandatory mediation and independent review will work, families could still end up in tribunal but simply having had to wait even longer.
- how does the SEND Review relate to other key pieces of legislation and policy development?
much will be determined by the Schools white paper, the outcome of the Independent Review into Children's Social Care and the Health and Care Bill.

There are some things in the SEND Review that the NNPCF is very concerned about

- the process for naming a place within an EHCP will change, enabling parents to name a preference from a tailored list of appropriate settings. At a minimum these lists must be coproduced with parent carer forums and individual tailored lists must be coproduced with families. Most importantly, families must retain the right of redress through mediation or tribunal in the case of a disagreement (as they do now).
- nothing is said about those young people not destined for further education, training or work. There is a heavy focus on educational and employment outcomes but for a proportion of young people with SEND that is not the right outcome (e.g. those with complex needs). The legislation must recognise the need to provide the right outcomes (e.g. independent or supported living) for this group.
- there is not enough about health and social care.
the Review is very focused on schools and local authorities. It says little on health and care providers and commissioners. If we are to create a joined up system, we must have clarity on what is expected from other key sectors.

The Department for Education has committed to holding a national event with the NNPCF and events in each of the regions for parent carer forums to feed into the consultation.

In addition, the NNPCF will be hosting independent events to gather parent carer forum views. The NNPCF (including Family Voice Norfolk) wants to gather thousands of parental views on the proposals and ensure that the parental voice is loud and clear and cannot be ignored through the consultation process.

Policy, legislation and SEND

As well as the SEND Review green paper, there are three other major pieces of legislation or policy in progress that will have a major impact upon the lives of children and young people with SEND. They are:

The Schools white paper – a major change in legislation for schools. This was released a day before the SEND Review. It focuses on the quality of teaching, standards, targeted support and the schools' system. Named Opportunity for all: strong schools with great teachers for your child, you can find it at https://

/www.gov.uk/government/publications/opportunity-for-all-strong-schools-with-great-teachers-for-your-child Further information can be found below.

The Children's Social Care Review – this independent review is being run by Josh MacCallister. The NNPCF has had extensive engagement with the review, including a webinar with Josh MacCallister attended by Family Voice Norfolk representatives. You can view a recording of this session on the NNPCF website at <https://nnpcf.org.uk/2022/03/29/send-green-paper-response-from-the-nnpf/> and more about The Case for Change in children's social care at <https://childrensocialcare.independent-review.uk/wp-content/uploads/2021/06/case-for-change.pdf>

The Health and Care Bill will establish Integrated Care Systems to replace clinical commissioning groups. Read more about it in this newsletter on page 26.

The Schools white paper

See above for a link to the full white paper. The NNPCF has helpfully highlighted some areas of particular interest for families with children or young people with special educational needs and/or disability.

- it is good that a 'strong multi-academy trust' is defined one that provides a 'high quality and inclusive education'. The review, regulation and enforcement of this will be key.
- the target for 90% of children to meet targets for reading, writing and maths could be a strong incentive for schools to focus on getting SEND provision right – if approximately 15% of children have SEND, it will be impossible to reach this target without strong SEND focus.

However, there are also dangers:

- because this is across the whole system and will not apply to individual schools or trusts there may be incentives for individual schools to schools to off roll or discourage SEND pupils from attending. The accountability, inspection and regulatory framework will need to be strong to counter this.
- a purely academic measure of success and focus on tests may be harmful to the mental health and wellbeing of many pupils. We need a wider definition of what 'success' looks like.
- the 'Parent Pledge' may offer additional rights to parent carers of children on SEN Support to get support more quickly. However, the paper is silent on other support, such as therapies.
- the emphasis on targeted support is welcome but the focus remains strongly on tutoring. What about other support (e.g. speech and language or occupational therapy) that many SEND children need?

- the White Paper goes some way towards tidying up the current confused accountability in the schools system. However, the responsibilities for ensuring that schools and trusts meet the needs of SEND children remains unclear – it is vital that the role of DfE Regional Directors and local authorities is clarified.
- There remains a strong focus on behaviour and attendance throughout the paper – if implemented crudely, this may again prove a disincentive to inclusive schools. More needs to be said about a requirement on schools to meet children’s needs promptly and an understanding that much ‘bad behaviour’ results from unmet needs.
- There is no mention of SEND in the remit for the new curriculum body that is proposed – the relationship between this and the minimum standards for SEND proposed in the SEND green paper requires greater clarity.
- Finally, there are several welcome proposals for the SEND community such as the additional training of SENCos, the mention of school mental health teams, the continued focus of Ofsted on off-rolling and the steer towards a broad curriculum featuring sports, music and culture.

Independent Living Skills courses

The Adult Learning team’s Independent Living Skills courses are still running.

You can find out more at <https://www.norfolk.gov.uk/education-and-learning/adult-learning/courses/living-skills>. Although the website says there are zero courses to view, this is because the Adult Learning team wants to ensure that the course will meet the student’s needs and be right for them before they enrol on to one of these courses, which is why you can’t enrol directly online.

You can still make an enquiry by contacting Julianne Tennant on julianne.tennant@nccal.ac.uk.

The next set of courses will be starting from the week commencing 25 April.

These courses help you live independently. You will learn skills to stay healthy and well.

You will meet new people, make friends and gain confidence.

You will learn skills that will help you to get a job.

We run three different courses:

- Live healthy – learn how to cook meals that are good for you
- Live creatively – learn how to draw, paint and play music
- Live positively – learn ways to exercise and do some daily activity, even if it’s just walking the dog

The course will also help you learn some ways of coping every day. The courses run from 10am until 3pm and are held in: Attleborough, Cromer, Dereham, Diss, Great Yarmouth, Holt, Hunstanton, King’s Lynn, North Walsham, Norwich, Sheringham, Sprowston, Swaffham, and Swanton Abbott.

You can get this course free if you earn under £16,009 per year or if you have an Education, Health and Care plan in place with your school/college.
